4. Coaches will not favor one particular child nor discourage any child from participating.

5. Coaches will promote, encourage and teach your child to the best of their ability all aspects of cheerleading and working together as a team.

6. The Head Coach is the communication point of the team. All issues should be raised to the head coach and not assistant coaches.

7. The Head Coach will discuss only your child with you.

8. Head coaches set all practice schedules. Practice schedules may be different for different teams. Participants must accept the practice schedule that the head coach sets up. Parents should consider other outside activities or sports before signing up for AAA Basketball Cheerleading. Attendance at other functions - except school related functions - will constitute an unexcused absence (examples: softball, soccer, competition cheerleading, etc.). Head coaches are responsible for cheer line-ups, dance formations, and stunt groups. Head coaches may use their discretion in forming these groups.

However, they must also be skilled trainers and knowledgeable about the rules and regulations of the sport. Choosing to become a cheerleading coach can be a very rewarding experience.

Head Coach

The head coach is responsible for the entire squad and everything that happens with the squad during the season. He/she is to make sure all AAA Basketball Cheerleading rules are being followed. Everything that the squad does falls completely under the job of the head coach. He/she can delegate powers how he/she feels fit but the final decisions should always come down to the head coach. Coaches need to:

- 1. Keep all parents, helpers, and cheerleaders informed of all important information for the cheer season schedules, practices, games, snacks, and etc.
- 2. Responsible for all cheerleaders at all times and make sure that a cheerleader is never left alone.

If this cannot be done, the head coach must contact the Basketball Cheer Director, who will contact the AAA Basketball Cheerleading Board and or AAA Executive Board to find a resolution.
- 10. Head coaches are encouraged to reach out to Archer High School cheerleaders to help during the season. The high school cheerleaders are introduced to coaches during camp and enjoy working with AAA Basketball Cheerleading during the Basketball season. The girls are to be listed as high school helpers on any paperwork you share with parents. They are not coaches. High school helpers

(Cheer Trainer) needed to be labeled as "minors" on certification papers and are not subject to background checks. For this reason, they are never to be left alone with a squad. High school helpers are there to help the coach but are not coaches. They should not discuss any information with parents. They should never discipline a cheerleader or call out a cheerleader on any occasion. If the high school helper has a complaint with an AAA basketball cheerleader, he/she should address it with the head coach and the head coach should handle the issue.

Assistant Coach

The role of the assistant coach is to help out the head coach in any way the head coach sees fit. If the head coach cannot be present, it is the role of the assistant coach to act on his/her behalf. Each head coach assigns the assistant coach different responsibilities. It is the assistant coach's job to follow through with those tasks to help make the squad run smoothly. Head coaches may choose their own assistant coaches. Once an assistant coach is chosen, the assistant coach is subject to AAA Basketball Cheerleading Board approval once background checks are complete.

Team Parent

The role of the team parent is to help out the head coach and assistant coach with the pencil/paper responsibilities of the team. This role is completely delegated by the head coach. The head coach assigns responsibilities throughout the season that the team parent can do to help the team run more successfully. Head coaches choose their own team parent. Once a team parent is chosen, the team parent is subject to AAA Basketball Cheerleading Board approval once background checks are complete. Some jobs a head coach might ask a team parent include:

Eighth grade cheerleaders will cheer as one large squad at all eighth grade games - possibly two games a week - unless the cheer board decides differently.
